Bette Bole, (alias B.R.)

I can't begin to tell you how much your friendship has meant to me. We have had so much fun at those Watuse parties, those dances, slumber parties at the Coral just to mention a few. You have been such a wonderful friend, one I'll never forget. Remember the senior sneak and Eiler's cabin (oh boy) Bette
I hope we can always be the best of friends and see each other often.
Always keep your bubbling personality and that great spirit. Have a real ball this summer and watch those lays. Best of luck to a real swingin' lake where is liked by everyone.
God bless you always,
Love Becky

P.S. You are really lucky to have such wonderful parents - always remember that

Betty,

Hope you lots
of luck next year
& have a real nice
summer.

John F. Kennedy

Inaugural Address

Delivered by

President John F. Kennedy

Friday, January 20, 1961, Washington, D.C.

My fellow citizens:

We observe today not a victory of party but a celebration of freedom—symbolizing an end as well as a beginning—signifying renewal as well as change. For I have sworn before you and Almighty God the same solemn oath our forebears prescribed nearly a century and three quarters ago.

The world is very different now. For man holds in his mortal hands the power to abolish all form of human poverty and all form of human life. And yet the same revolutionary beliefs for which our forebears fought are still at issue around the globe—the belief that the rights of man come not from the generosity of the state but from the hand of God.

We dare not forget today that we are the heirs of that first revolution. Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans—born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace, proud of our ancient heritage—and unwilling to witness or permit the slow undoing of those human rights to which this nation has always been committed, and to which we are committed today, at home and around the world.

Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, or oppose any foe in order to assure the survival and success of liberty. This much we pledge—and more.

To those old allies whose cultural and spiritual origins we share, we pledge the loyalty of faithful friends. United, there is little we cannot do in a host of new cooperative ventures. Divided, there is little we can do—for we dare not meet a powerful challenge at odds and split asunder.

To those states whom we now welcome to the ranks of the free, we pledge our word that one form of colonial control shall not have passed away merely to be replaced by a far more iron tyranny. We shall not always expect to find them supporting our view.

But we shall always hope to find them strongly supporting their own freedom—and to remember that, in the past, those who foolishly sought to find power by riding on the tiger's back ended up inside.

To those people in the huts and villages of half the globe struggling to break the bonds of mass misery, we pledge our best efforts to help them help themselves, for whatever period is required—not because the Communists may be doing it, nor because we seek their votes, but because it is right. If the free society cannot help the many who are poor, it cannot save the few who are rich.

To our sister republics south of our border, we offer a special pledge—to convert our good words into good deeds—in a new alliance for progress—to assist free men and free governments in casting off the chain of poverty. But this peaceful revolution of hope cannot become the prey of hostile powers. Let all our neighbors know that we shall join with them to oppose aggression or subversion anywhere in the Americas. And let every other power know that this hemisphere intends to remain the master of its own house.

To that world assembly of sovereign states, the United Nations, our last best hope in an age where the instruments of war have far outpaced the instruments of peace, we renew our pledge of support—to prevent it from becoming merely a forum for inaction—to strengthen its shields of peace and the weak—and to enlarge the area in which its writ may run.

Finally, to those nations who would make themselves our adversaries, we offer not a pledge but a request: That both sides begin anew the quest for peace, before the dark powers of destruction unleashed by science engulf all humanity in planned or accidental self-destruction.

We dare not tempt them with weakness. For only when our arms are sufficient beyond doubt can we be certain beyond doubt that they will never be employed.

But neither can two great and powerful groups of nations take comfort from our present course—both sides overburdened by the cost of modern weapons, both rightly alarmed by the steady spread of the deadly atom, yet both racing to alter that uncertain balance of terror that stays the hand of mankind's final war.

So let us begin anew—remembering on both sides that civility is not a sign of weakness, and sincerity is always subject to proof. Let us never negotiate out of fear. But let us never fear to negotiate.

Let both sides explore those problems which unite us instead of belaboring the problems that divide us.

Let both sides, for the first time, formulate serious and precise proposals for the inspection and control of arms—and bring the absolute power to destroy other nations under absolute control of all nations.

Let both sides join to invoke the wonders of science instead of its terrors. Together let us explore the stars, conquer the deserts, eradicate disease, tap the ocean depths and encourage the arts and commerce.

Let both sides unite to heed in all corners of the earth the command of Isaiah—to "undo the heavy burdens . . . and let the oppressed go free."

And if a beachhead of cooperation can be made in the jungles of suspicion, let both sides join in the next task: Creating not a new balance of power, but a new world of law, where the strong are just and the weak secure and the peace preserved.

All this will not be finished in the first one hundred days. Nor will it be finished in the first one thousand days, nor in the life of this administration, nor even perhaps in our lifetime on this planet. But let us begin.

In your hands, my fellow citizens, more than in mine, will rest the final success or failure of our course. Since this country was founded, each generation of Americans has been summoned to give testimony to its national loyalty. The graves of young Americans who answered that call surround the globe.

Now the trumpet summons us again—not as a call to bear arms, though arms we need—not as a call to battle, though embattled we are—but a call to bear the burden of a long twilight struggle, year in and year out, "rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation"—a struggle against the common enemies of man: Tyranny, poverty, disease and war itself.

Can we forge against these enemies a grand and global alliance, North and South, East and West, that can assure a more fruitful life for all mankind? Will you join in that historic effort?

In the long history of the world, only a few generations have been granted the role of defending freedom in its hour of maximum danger.

I do not shrink from this responsibility—I welcome it. I do not believe that any of us would exchange places with any other people or any other generation. The energy, the faith, and the devotion which we bring to this endeavor will light our country and all who serve it—and the glow from that fire can truly light the world.

And so, my fellow Americans: Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country.

My fellow citizens of the world: Ask not what America will do for you, but what together we can do for the freedom of man.

Finally, whether you are citizens of America or of the world, ask of us here the same high standards of strength and sacrifice that we ask of you. With a good conscience our only sure reward, with history the final judge of our deeds, let us go forth to lead the land we love, asking his blessing and his help, but knowing that here on earth God's work must truly be our own.

The student entering high school is faced with an entirely new educational situation. He is immediately exposed to the pressures of a highly competitive atmosphere and must learn to cope with these unfamiliar surroundings. The attitude which a student assumes in regard to his high school career forms the foundation for his intellectual and social development. An atmosphere of friendliness and acceptance facilitates the development of the proper attitude.

The primary concern of the high school is to stimulate the student intellectually. As the student matures, his interests become more defined and he grows in perceptiveness and imagination. The student's development is guided by organized programs designed to give him a general background of knowledge upon which he can easily expand. It is hoped that the student will eventually assert a measure of intellectual independence and, as so doing, reach a plateau in his development.

The high school consistently encourages athletic participation. The benefits gained through the sports media are of great importance in all phases of student development. It is through athletics that the student can most easily observe his development and efforts toward the achievement of a significant goal. An individual must set his sights on the attainment of a certain plateau. If he fails to do this the result will invariably be intellectual and physical stagnation. The well-rounded student cannot afford to restrict himself solely to the pursuit of academic distinction. The competitive nature of athletics enables the student to reflect on his own achievements as compared to the achievements of his peers. Educational development is often stimulated through this process of reflection.

One of the most valuable supplements to an individual's formal education is his association with other students. The student's development is greatly influenced by the ideas and opinions which he encounters. The discussion and exchange of ideas affords the student an opportunity to make decisions and to develop a measure of emotional stability. The ability to establish a place for himself in the social life of the high school is still another facet of the well-rounded student.

The first part of the year was spent in the laboratory, and the second part in the field. The first part was spent in the laboratory, and the second part in the field. The first part was spent in the laboratory, and the second part in the field.

Assuming that the student has conscientiously applied himself to the fulfillment of certain goals, the culmination of his educational background and experiences is reached at the time of graduation. The student's high school career represents one phase in his attainment of maturity. Yet, that which the individual has gone through this period in his development forms a foundation for future achievement. The burdens of personal responsibility are continually changing hands.

It has been the primary objective of the East High English Department to provide every student with a substantial English background. Recognizing the need for students to master the basic writing and speaking skills, the English Department has first given the student a strong mechanical foundation. The intellectual stimulation of the student has been achieved through the presentation of new ideas and concepts.

This year saw the introduction of a new phase in the English program. A Humanities class, made up of senior honors students, sought to gain a more comprehensive understanding of literary, musical, and artistic works through the framework of discussion and analysis.

The culmination of the English preparation of the students was again witnessed in the production of another fine literary magazine. In addition to providing a four year program of grammar and literature, the English Department also supervises the Knighttimes, the Shield, and the Speech Department.

History

The History Department supplies a well-rounded program designed to provide the student with a background in American History and contemporary World Affairs

There are also a number of fine supplementary courses of which the student might avail himself. The result is a program which is designed to give the student depth in the study of history

Language

The East High Language Department has sought to develop an understanding, in the student, of at least one foreign language. A number of different techniques are employed in developing competence in the speaking and writing of a foreign language. French, Latin, German and Spanish were newly joined by Russian this year to round out the language department. Simply developing a knowledge of the language is not the only objective of the classes. The students discuss and study the customs, traditions and history of the country. An extensive reading program is often employed to develop a practical understanding of the language itself.

Science and Math

The importance of science and mathematics has consistently been emphasized and is becoming more obvious than ever in a world geared toward these specific endeavors. The Science and Mathematics Department offers the student an excellent background in the fundamentals of these subjects and encourages the student to pursue these subject lines

One important function of this department is the development of good study habits and self discipline which are essential to an understanding of these specialized fields. The department offers an excellent progression of courses which exposes the student to the various facets of each field. The result is a program which combines a close relationship between mathematics and sciences to produce a student with a substantial background in both fields

Business Ed.

The Business Education Department seeks to develop certain practical and vocational skills in the student. Typing and business mathematics are two courses which are of great value to every student regardless of his intentional career. Intensive vocational training is also offered through the pursuit of such courses as advanced typing, office practice, stenography, and bookkeeping.

The Distributive Education class is of great value, encouraging a practical application of vocational skills. The class works in close cooperation with local stores in developing certain selling and merchandising skills.

Vocational Ed.

The manual skills are developed significantly through the Shop Department. The students are able to gain practical experience in such skills as drafting, woodworking and other individual projects which lead toward a chosen vocational goal. The shop provides an excellent background for a wealth of training and experience to benefit the student who intends to follow a vocational preparation course.

The Homemaking Department stresses skills of another kind. It attempts to prepare the student for the responsibilities and duties of a household and family. The homemaking classes present the student with certain responsibilities and duties similar to those they will be faced with in later years. Its value as a preparation for later life is undeniable.

Music

The East High Music Department has always proven itself quite capable. One of its most significant contributions this year consisted of the highly successful production of "The Music Man," which was produced in cooperation with West High School. The vocal and instrumental divisions of the Music Department develop the talent which abounds at East.

The Art Department has consistently produced some excellent work from its students. As well as stressing the importance of creativity and imagination, the department utilizes these skills through various school services. The students design and produce posters for school plays and other events, as well as arranging a number of interesting displays for the edification and enjoyment of the student body.

Physical Ed.

The Physical Education Department seeks to supplement the academic diet of the student through participation in various physical activities. The development and maintenance of a sound body is equally as important as intellectual achievement and preparedness. The freshmen and sophomores are required to participate in various sports conducted within the individual physical education classes. Various exercises are repeated by the students to improve their physical condition as well as developing dexterity and coordination. The department seeks to develop qualities such as good sportsmanship, integrity, and a competitive spirit. The classes also concentrate on first aid techniques which provide a valuable experience.

The concerted development and refinement of self-direction, cooperation, enthusiasm, industry and spirit results in a class that can honestly be termed successful. Individuals may distinguish themselves without these qualities, but a class is lost if they are abandoned.

The senior class demonstrated its growth in maturity and commitment on a number of occasions. Having completed its final step in building a cohesive unit, the class may reflect with pride on its most recent achievements. The Senior Boy

Through the Looking Glass was a graceful transformation into an unbelievably radiant world with all the splendor and grandeur of the fantasy it portrayed.

The class demonstrated its commitment through its dedication toward its athletic records and the basketball which it selected. The mascot costume and "Senior Boy" overalls which were favored by the Senior Party, likewise the senior year of the class of '64 and associated the class with the basketball team for the next four years.

The senior class headed by Bill Swanson for many years has contributed to the student body as a whole and has strengthened each class member as an individual. There is no doubt that the class of '64 will be remembered for its success because of the unity it displayed.

ADVISER
MRS. TRACY

The Junior Class is to be commended for its exemplary display of cooperation and industry during the past year. It is essential to the success of any activity that the class function as a unit. This unity has been achieved, in great measure, by the Junior Class. In a vigorous drive to supplement their accumulated wealth, the class sponsored a number of extensive projects, including the sale of class pennants and an intensive candy sale. They also relied on the funds gained from a popcorn-ball sale, two booths at the school carnival, and the sponsoring of an after-game dance.

The activity of the juniors was climaxed by their highly successful Junior Prom. Their execution of the chosen theme, "Grecian Moonlight," was not only a thing of beauty, but one of precision and tasteful restraint as well. The class may be justifiably proud of the perfection achieved as the culmination of their careful planning. President Tim Paschal, assisted greatly in the development of the spirit, enthusiasm, and cooperation which played such an important role in the successful year enjoyed by the members. The class of '65 contributed its time and energies in all phases of student affairs and activities, and preserved the honor and high standards which it already established.

The class of '66 showed a great deal of enthusiasm in its attempts to effect an ever greater degree of cooperation among its members. The class gained a measure of confidence and an intense pride in its own achievements and in those of the school as a whole. The sophomores worked diligently to distinguish themselves in all manners of class competition. Their efforts were rewarded as their boat representing a great deal of thought and hard work was judged first in the annual Homecoming Caravan. This enthusiasm was channeled into a number of worthwhile projects including the annual Sophomore Dance which did much toward creating an atmosphere of friendliness and acceptance for the entire school community.

During the year, President Ralph Sokowsky, the Sophomores recognized a need for additional tasks to provide for the class and to provide a number of highly successful projects were carried out. These included the following: sponsoring of the 1966 Homecoming, the sale of candy, and a booth in the school carnival. The enthusiasm and spirit of the class was manifested by its avid support of athletics and its abundant contributions to the varsity and junior varsity teams. The marked growth in unity and school spirit in the sophomore class is a tribute to its leaders and to its members.

ADVISER
MR. VEHR

The freshman year is generally indicative of the enthusiasm and spirit that a class will possess. The students are met by formidable challenges in all phases of student life and the way in which they react to these challenges is an accurate indication of their eagerness and ambition. Under the leadership of President David Sokolowsky, the class has displayed a spirit of cooperation and a high standard of achievement consistent with the traditions of East High.

The class of '67 quickly adjusted to its new environment. The class actively participated in the food and clothing drives, the annual school carnival, and contributed a float to the Homecoming Caravan. The members of the class cooperated in a number of fund-raising projects in an effort to gain a sound financial footing for later years. Their fund-making activities included pie sales, popcorn sales, the sponsoring of after-game dances and a number of car washes. The excellent performances of the athletic teams and the enthusiasm with which the teams were supported are not only a credit to the class, but are a credit to the school as a whole. The class of '67 has certainly indicated an enthusiasm and spirit consistent with the tradition of the East Knights.

THE BEGINNING—ENTHUSIASTIC AND PROMISING

Activities

John Tracy

A.S.B. President

The governmental body of the interested students is called the Association of Student Bodies. The House of Representatives under the direction of Speaker Ben Mackey, underwent a complete reorganization to increase its effectiveness. The Executive Council provided the motivation for a number of worthwhile school projects. A mosaic crest was implanted in the new building and a banner on a set in East Hall, the colors of the improvement and beautification of the school grounds was another goal of the governmental body. Significant progress was made during the coming year in the fulfillment of this goal.

HEAD COACH DAVE ENSLOW CONFERS WITH COACH JOE DUPRON

The East High Football Team fared well in its first year of eligibility in the Olympic League. Lack of experience proved to be a detriment to the team as it was largely composed of sophomores and juniors. The few seniors were an asset to the team. East was fortunate in having an excellent coaching staff which included Mr. DaProng, Mr. Berney, Mr. Krafcik, Mr. Lindberg and Head Coach Mr. Dave Enslow.

The team was unfortunately plagued with injury throughout the year. This proved to be a handicap as the squad encountered some strong opposition during the season.

HEAD COACH LES EATHORNE CALLS TIME-OUT TO GIVE KEY PLAY

The basketball team began the year with deficiencies in height and experience. Having only two returning varsity lettermen, the team was forced to replace the qualities it lacked with plenty of hustle and desire. The fine performance of the senior players and the support rendered by an excellent background of juniors, enabled the squad to enjoy an extremely successful season. A highlight of the year included an exciting double-overtime "near-win" against Lincoln of Tacoma, a team rated high in the state. The outstanding performance against West High School was an equally exciting event.

Lead by Captain John Tracy, the team developed into a cohesive and smoothly operating unit, characterized by superior athletics and exceptional students. The performance of the Freshman and Junior Varsity teams would seem to indicate the high caliber of basketball which East will continue to enjoy.

Bette,

We're really had fun this year - I pretty sure I hope I did something at the school to act
I am so happy and cheerful. Don't ever change.

Love always
